R5000
CASH PRIZE

The collaborating partners are the Road Ethics Project, a non-profit company focused on the ethical imperative of reducing road crashes, and the Occupational Therapy Association of South Africa (OTASA). Occupational therapists have a keen interest in road safety, being recognized for their driving fitness expertise and serving as key members of multidisciplinary post-crash rehabilitation teams. They are thus well placed to be – and to recognize – road safety advocates.

This call for nominations goes out during OT Week 2019, with its slogan #ThePowerOfOT. The nominee can be from any walk of life and should be someone who:

- ▲ Has dedicated visible and effective time and effort to the road safety cause
- ▲ Has assisted people and families affected by road crashes
- ▲ Has shown leadership in mobilising society to reduce road traffic injuries, disabilities & deaths
